Biography

Tamires Camargo Lietti Lippi de Oliveira is a journalist who holds a Master's degree with a focus on Communication in Social Media, obtained in China. Her areas of interest include intercultural communication, digital community building, and the Middle East. With extensive travel experience in the region, she has collected information in several countries such as Iran, Iraq, and Syria and sees the scholarly world as a way to channel everything she learned from these cultures and promote discourses that aim to include varied perspectives regarding these communities, challenging those already propagated within the mass media.
